

Miss Natalie Brush Becomes Bride of Bennett Gates at Beautiful Ceremony

One of the most beautiful weddings in Indianapolis this season was celebrated this afternoon when Miss Natalie L. Brush, daughter of Mrs. John T. Brush, became the bride of Bennett Gates. The ceremony was read at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, by the Rev. F. S. C. Wicks, pastor of All Soul's Unitarian church.

The sun parlor, used for the ceremony room, was lined with cedar trees studded with yellow calla lilies and banked with Spirea-Gladstone, Deutzia and forsythia. The fountain was banked with maiden-hair ferns and white hyacinths, and at either side of the entrance stood an especially-grown ball-shaped genista plant. The altar was formed of pyramids of Azalea-India plants and cathedral candles in gold holders stood on either side. White candles in gold candelabra helped to complete the altar. The drawing room was decorated with tall bowls of yellow Claddeus Perret roses, white lilacs and white snapdragons, and a profusion of forsythia and spring flowers in yellow and white were used throughout the house.

Mrs. Franc Wilhite Webber, with the harp, and Miss Yuba Wilhite, with the violin cello, played bridal airs preceding the ceremony, and during the ceremony played music from the "Meistersinger." The bride entered with her godfather, Harry S. New, postmaster-general, and was given in marriage by her mother. There were no attendants. Her gown was of white satin, fashioned with a basque waist and a full skirt. At the bottom of the skirt was a lace ruffle of old family lace, headed with a deep band of orange blossoms. The gown was heavily beaded in seed pearls. Her train was of white chiffon made with two panels of white satin edged with the orange blossoms. The veil was of tulle and was fastened with a coronet of pearls and trimmed with orange blossoms. The face veil was worn just below the eyes. She carried an arm bouquet of white spray orchids.

Mrs. Brush's gown was of white chiffon and she wore a pale pink hat with slippers to match. She carried lilies of the valley bordered with pink roses. R. D. Patterson was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. A lace cloth covered the table which held the wedding cake. The table was set with antique silver and was lighted with white tapers. White lilacs and yellow spray orchids were the flowers used. The large gold and white cake was covered with tulle and the bride removed the tulle and cut the cake. All of the candles, cakes and ices were in gold and white.

Guests at the wedding were Postmaster-General and Mrs. New, who came from Washington; Mrs. Mason Starring, Jr., of Philippe Manor, N. Y.; Mrs. H. A. Schlotzhauer, Jr., of Winter Park, Fla.; Mrs. Hugh J. McGowan, of this city, who has been in Florida; Mrs. William H. Lee, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bart, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Talbott, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Crume, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Beres, all of Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Gardner and Collin Gardner, of Middletown, O. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Gates will return to Indianapolis.
