
FROM CHOIR TO BENCH

Old Michigan Man, Singer of War Songs, Runs for Police Justice.

Omaha, Neb., August 14. --- Jules Lombard, the famous old singer of war songs and friend of Lincoln's, the man who first sang "The Battle-cry of Freedom," the man who with his equally famous brother, Frank Lombard, sang patriotic songs at most of the big war meetings held in the north and did so much to inspire patriotism and to recruit the army, has just announced himself a candidate for police judge in Omaha.

Mr. Lombard was born and reared in Hillsdale county, Michigan. He has resided in Omaha for many years. For a long time he was agent here for an eastern railroad. Recently he was retired from its service on a pension and then he opened a law office here. He is past 70, but is still hale and hearty. For years his splendid bass voice has been heard in the fashionable churches of Omaha.
